Sad Case of Drowning.

Aaron Jordan, the eleven-year-old son of Engineer Walter Jordan, of the Norfolk and Western Railway, was drowned in the Appomattox this afternoon Just below the Pocahontas or Battersea cotton factory. Master Jordan, with a friend name Lanier, went in bathing in what is called "Birchett's Hole." Each of them had "wing preservers" made of blown bladders, which were used as life protectors. The wings of young Jordan became displaced while in water over his depth, and, being unable to swim, he sank and was drowned before aid could reach him. The body was soon afterwards recovered, and Dr. W. P. Hoy and friends used every effort to resuscitate him, but without success. The body was taken to the home of the parents on West High Street.

Mecting of Board of Aldermen.

The first regular meeting of the newly organized Board of Aldermen was held yesterday afternoon with Fresident William Koenig in the chair, and ten of the twelve members present. Concurrence was voted in the various appropriations made by the lower branch of the Council last week, and in other matters passed by that body. The recommendations submitted in the recent message of the Mayor were referred to appropriate committees. Alderman Moore entered an carnest protest against certain things done at the recent joint meeting of the Councils, not specifying, however, what they were. Mr. Moore was out of the city at the time of that meeting and did not get his notice to attend in time.
